News in review

News in review provides a summary of some of the past week's stories. This column is designed for out-of-town readers who do not receive the Sunday and Wednesday Press-Record Journals.

Lanter seeking assessment cut

Madison School District No. 12 officials say they will do whatever they can to prohibit a Madison company from getting extended tax breaks that would keep money from the school district.

The Lanter Company is seeking a reduction in assessment of two parcels of property it owns in Madison.

The property has been a part of an enterprise zone in Madison for the last four years. The zone gives the company a break on property taxes.

After four years of tax breaks in an enterprise zone, businesses begin paying property taxes at the normal rate to the various taxing bodies.

Lanter is seeking a total reduction of about $100,000 in assessed valuation. That would translate into about $100,000 for all the taxing districts. The school district would lose about $50,000.

City and school officials, as well as other taxing bodies, are expected to fight Lanter's request.

Meningitis worry over

School officials said Friday that the form of meningitis contracted by a 13-year-old Coolidge Junior High School student last week was not contagious.

The girl was recovering well last week.

Referenda suggested for April

Alderman Dan Partney wants several referenda regarding elected city officials placed on the April ballot.

"It's obvious people want something else done. We can't just stick our heads in the sand and ignore it," Partney said.

"People want less government. It's obvious people feel one alderman per ward is enough. Let's let them have it. But let's do it right," Partney told the City Council.

Partney has proposed for the April ballot an aldermanic reduction referendum, a proposition to eliminate the city treasurer's position and a question whether the street superintendent should be appointed or elected.

Madison seeks school sale

The Madison School Board wants to sell Louis Baer School for a minimum of $15,000.

The board instructed Superintendent Ken Miller to contact Regional Superintendent Harry Briggs to request approval of the sale, which would be by bid.

Eavenson a hero

Dr. Mark Eavenson says he was just doing what he had to do. But to Virgil Wooley, Eavenson is truly a hero.

Wooley suffered from heart failure about 20 minutes into a flight from Phoenix to St. Louis last Sunday. Eavenson, a Granite City chiropractor and nurse who happened to be on the flight as well, regulated Wooley's oxygen and monitored his pulse and blood pressure for the next two and a half hours until the plane landed in St. Louis.

Relatives say justice wasn't done

System failed us, says stepmother of Brenda Dusek

By Martin Richter
Staff writer

Even though two teenagers were sentenced to prison last week for killing Brenda Dusek of Collinsville as she walked to her car in downtown St. Louis on June 28, 1993, the victim's stepmother said Monday that the family still does not feel justice has been done.

Columbus Cole, 17, and William Powell Jr., 16, pleaded guilty on Friday to second-degree murder, first-degree robbery and armed criminal act.

Cole, who was the triggerman, received life in prison for murder and two concurrent 10-year sentences for robbery and armed criminal act. Powell was sentenced to 20 years in prison.

The two, along with four other youths, approached Dusek, formerly of Granite City, in broad daylight as she walked from her job at Mercantile Bank in St. Louis to her car, parked a few blocks away near the intersection of Ninth and Carr streets.

According to authorities, Powell grabbed Dusek by the neck and ordered her to give up her purse; Cole then fired two shots into her chest.

In a plea-bargain agreement, four of the youths agreed to testify against Cole and Powell in exchange for the dropping of charges against them.

Margaret Dusek, stepmother, said the four then said their lives had been threatened and refused to testify.

Last Thursday and Friday, Norwood said, it was very much in doubt if Cole and Powell would be convicted of anything. This was before they both pleaded guilty on Friday.

Norwood said at the time of her stepdaughter's murder that those responsible should be executed, and she said Monday that she doesn't feel the penalties handed down last week were severe enough.

"We realize that all six kids should have had some kind of sentence," she said. "They all knew about it. They all planned it together. I think Cole should have gotten the death penalty."

The trial was a very trying time for the family, Norwood said, both because they had to relive Dusek's death through the testimony of police detectives, and because of more than a dozen young men who were friends of the defendants.

The group of friends all wore blue, and were escorted from the courtroom once or twice for causing a disturbance, Norwood said.

She said one of the young men directed a racial epithet at her.

Those who attended the trial included Norwood and her husband, Grover; Dusek's children — Joe Dusek, Jim Dusek and Ann Dusek-McNeill — a sister and Dusek's mother-in-law.

Testimony showed that Dusek had only $1.45 in her purse at the time of the robbery and murder, Norwood said. She said the men who killed her removed a rosary, credit cards and family pictures from her purse, then went to one youth's grandmother's house and ate brownies.

Norwood said she was making a scrapbook of newspaper clippings about the case to give later to each of Dusek's four grandchildren, all of whom are 5 or younger.

Dusek was 52 when she was killed.

Suspect arrested in W. Granite robbery

A 23-year-old Fairmont City man has been arrested in connection with an armed robbery in West Granite two weeks ago.

The arrest in effect cleared up three cases for Granite City police, as the man was later charged with home invasion in connection with another incident in West Granite that occurred Nov. 12 and burglary.

Collinsville Police arrested Kenneth L. Davidson Jr., of the 2500 block of North 36th Street in Fairmont City on Friday night. A police officer tried to stop Davidson for a traffic violation, and learned that he was wanted on a warrant from Granite City for armed robbery.

Davidson was stopped after a Nov. 5 incident at Monday's Madison laund-dry, 2238 Illinois Avenue. Bond on that warrant was set at $150,000.

Davidson was charged Monday with home invasion in connection with a Nov. 12 incident in the 2000 block of Missouri Avenue. In that case, Davidson allegedly tried to rob a 79-year-old woman at knifepoint inside her home.

Bond on the home invasion warrant is $200,000.

He was also charged Monday with burglary for allegedly breaking in to the Monday's Madison prior to the robbery there.

Bond on the burglary warrant is $50,000.

Det. Sgt. Jeff Parker of the Granite City Police Department said police believe Davidson was returning to the burglary scene to finish the job when the armed robbery took place.

According to the official armed robbery charge, Davidson

The EnviroWhirl 1 sucks up leaves in the 2600 block of Cleveland Boulevard Thursday. Street Superintendent Clayton "Jug" Harrison is lobbying the City Council for $210,000 to buy the machine.

New leaf truck sought for city

Leaves. That is what the Granite City Street Department sweeper trucks do with those things that fall off the trees and float to the ground — it "leaves" them. Residents rake them up into piles and push them out into the street for the leaf sweeper to pick them up.

But, according to Street Superintendent Clayton "Jug" Harrison, it takes a sweeper truck about an hour just to pick up the leaves in front of one house in areas dense with trees.

One special teacher

GCHS math instructor receives honor

By Hiley Schulte
Staff writer

Most people have a special teacher that they will always remember. For Amy Gebhardt, that teacher is Thelma Randall. Gebhardt is currently a freshman at the University of Missouri. She graduated from Granite City High School, where Thelma Randall was her math teacher.

Because of Gebhardt's nomination, Randall was recently presented an Outstanding High School Teacher Award by the University of Missouri's College of Agriculture, Food and Natural Resources (CAFNR). Amy nominated Randall, "my most influential teacher."

"I feel very honored. I don't have the foggiest idea why she nominated me. I just treat my students the way I want my children to be treated. I try to help them understand the material, hopefully with a sense of humor," Randall said. Gebhardt nominated her former teacher because "she had a really neat way of explaining things."

Randall has been a math teacher at Granite City High School since 1965. She teaches primarily geometry and trigonometry.

Amy took Randall's 1A and 2A Geometry and Trigonometry A classes.

"She was the type of

person...well I graded her paper first, and if I found something wrong, I went back and checked mine," said Randall.

The University of Missouri gives the award because "we value our elementary and secondary teachers very much. Unless they do their jobs well, we at the University of Missouri can't do ours. The Teachers Recognition Banquet is one small way we at MU can say thank you," said CAFNR Dean Roger Mitchell.

The banquet was held Oct. 18, but Randall was unable to attend. MU sent her award through the mail.

"It makes one feel good to occasionally be patted on the back. We hear so many negative things. Anything positive is good," Randall continued.

"We recognize that teachers play a big role in high school students' decisions about college and the attitudes students have toward learning. Teachers who foster an excitement for learning are lighting a flame that will pay off in better informed, more productive citizens. The record is clear," said Bill Stringer, MU associate dean.

Randall is glad to have influenced Amy. "Once in awhile students find a teacher to identify with. Everyone needs someone to identify with," she said.

"She was always good to talk to about problems, even problems not related to school," said Amy.

Randall was born and raised in Granite City. Her husband, James Randall, is also a teacher at GCHS. He teaches English.

The Randalls have two children. Their son, Kevin, is a senior at Murray State and plans to attend Eastern Illinois University and study music.

Their daughter, Michelle, is a senior at Murray State and plans to attend University in Kentucky where she is majoring in Spanish and English.

Randall's mother, Olga Oberdieck, is 89 years old and also lives in Granite City.

Amy is the daughter of Harold and Diane Gebhardt.

SIUUE physics professor receives state honor

Also attending the dinner meeting at Principia College in Elmhurst was SIUE physics faculty members Professor A.J. Braunmeier, chair of the department; Professor George Heenderson; Professor Ik-Ju-Kang and Assistant Professor Craig Parmian.

Zurhede earned a bachelor's degree in physics from Southern Illinois University at Carbondale. As a graduate student, Zurhede was a research assistant in the cosmic ray laboratory. He joined the SIUE faculty as a physics instructor in 1958 and became an associate professor in 1973.

In addition to AAPT membership, Zurhede has been very active in several committees on the association's state and national level. He also has been active with the Illinois Science Teachers Association, serving as president from 1979 to 1981. He is a member of the American Association for Colleges for Teacher Education, the Greater St. Louis Alliance of Physics Teachers, Sigma Pi Sigma and Kappa Mu Epsilon.

Changes are needed

R C Bush says there are two kinds of failures: those who act without thinking and those who think but fail to act. Bush, executive vice president of the Tri-Cities Area Chamber of Commerce, made the comments last week at the Granite City Rotary Club Community Action Prayer Breakfast. The comments were made in reference to two failed attempts in the past year at a reduction in the size of the Granite City Council.

Bush said the failed attempts fall in the first category — those who do without thinking. We agree.

No matter how well-intentioned Joe McGinness' two attempts were to reduce the number of aldermen in Granite City and no matter how strongly the voters supported the initiative when it appeared on the ballot last March, the plans simply lacked the foresight to do it properly.

The first attempt, for example, did not even make it to the ballot because it lacked the required number of valid signatures. The second attempt did not have the proper form required by statute.

Even if the verbiage in the second attempt had been correct, the question was not carefully thought out. Had the plan not been halted by a judge, seven elected officials would have had the length of their terms halved. The entire council would have been up for election next year.

Perhaps most importantly, there was no provision for staggering of terms and thus no provision to take advantage of one of the concepts our forefathers had the foresight to ensure when setting up government in this country more than 200 years ago — continuity.

All seven aldermen would have been elected every four years. That could have had devastating effect, given the fact that some matters — pending lawsuits for example — come before the council after lying dormant for several years. Imagine the shock city leaders would have had to discover that a lawsuit had been filed, it was time to deal with it and nobody knew anything about it.

The first attempt, for example, did not even make it to the ballot because it lacked the required number of valid signatures. The second attempt did not have the proper form required by statute.

In our opinion, the proposed number of aldermen was another problem with the failed referendum. With a council of seven, only seven people would have responsibility of oversight of all city departments and finances. One lone alderman would have the formidable task of representing the wishes of constituents in an entire ward.

And only four votes would be necessary to conduct the business of the city. And any political faction that managed to get a majority of just four aldermen elected to the council could have its way with city government — and would continue to have its way for four years.

We said when the measure hit the ballot that it might be a good idea, but that the timing was wrong and it was not well thought out.

Now comes Alderman Dan Partney — never one to hide his opinion.

Partney has proposed a sensible plan to reduce the size of the city council, ensure some continuity, and even add something new — at large representation to counter the parochialism or "ward politics" that seems to be more and more prevalent lately and rendered the council impotent when trying to deal with questions that effect the entire city.

No matter how much it may hurt the aldermen to cut their own number, we urge them to put the measure on the ballot in April.

And this time, maybe it will be done with both thought and action.

Letters policy

The Granite City Press-Record Journal welcomes letters to the editor. The newspaper provides the "Letters" column to give readers an opportunity to voice opinions on various items of interest.

Letters should be brief, preferably less than 10 paragraphs. Typed letters, or letters that are neatly written are given priority treatment. Free, given to locally originated letters, but letters from outside the area are accepted.

Each letter must be signed and include the telephone number and address of the author.

Leaves take over the streets

TO THE EDITOR:
There ought to be a way we can take back our streets. The leaves have taken over and are even clogging our sewers. The city can't handle the problem and people are frustrated. There is no concerted effort at yard cleanup. The leaves continue to pile up. Take them to 25th Street across the tracks, we are told. That road is almost impossible. I find it impractical to consider bagging the enormous collection of leaves. Then, of course, you have to unbag them at the disposal area.

So, the conversations go something like this: "Why don't we cut down all the trees then we will eliminate the problem?" "Oh, no. They supply oxygen to the atmosphere and you know what beauty they add to the city."

Of course, I was joking about cutting down trees, but if they supply oxygen, then we ought to be entitled to burn leaves and break even. Actually, we will be ahead. We will still have the trees.

Burning leaves is worth considering. Maybe with some restrictions as to time of burning could give us all some needed help. Some of the smart people in authority need to study the problem and correct it soon.

Many homeless are veterans

TO THE EDITOR:
Recent studies of America's homeless problem reflects that approximately one third are citizens who served our country in its armed forces. Recent newspaper articles report that the United States will have Haiti $216 million to provide jobs for members of the widely hated Haiti armed forces. Another news article stated that food pantries across the United States will turn away hungry Americans this winter because of the government cuts to the Emergency Food Assistance Program. It's time for us to ask Sens. Simon and Rep. Costello why our government can give billions of dollars away to foreign interests and denies aid and assistance to its own people.

Durbins acts conservative

TO THE EDITOR:
Last week in a letter to the editor, U.S. Rep. Richard Durbin wrote that he recently sent the National Endowment for the Arts (NEA) a message by voting to decrease federal funding for the endowment.

I would like for Mr. Durbin to tell us just how many millions of dollars of taxpayer's money went into the 1994 NEA budget.

But more importantly, after years of complaining by the public, and Durbin FINALLY deciding to vote for a decrease in NEA funding, I would like to know what the proposed budget for the NEA will be for next year.

Durbin indicates that Ron Athey's performance, which included blood dripping on the audience, was offensive and that he (Durbin) would continue to monitor NEA funding to ensure that its money was spent properly. Personally, I believe that Durbin, a Clinton-like charameleon, is attempting to appear conservative by his opponent, Bill Owens, opposed to taxpayers having to fund the NEA.

I say this because on Oct. 14, 1993, Durbin would not support Robert Dorman's R-Calif. amendment to cut 40 percent from the budget of the National Endowment for the Humanities and the NEA, who were in fact funding pornographic and anti-Christian "art" projects.

Durbin's statement of, "I will continue to monitor NEA funding," indicates that he has been doing so for some time. I wonder why the Robert Mapplethorpe exhibit didn't bother him?

Do you mean to say that one man urinating into the mouth of another was not offensive?

Possibly not as a Christian, but as a Catholic, weren't you just a little offended, Cong. Durbin, when you heard that this exhibit included a crucifix submerged in a jar of urine? Freedom of expression, maybe? Taxpayer funded ... I think not.

Unless it's pure politics, Mr. Durbin? I suppose you were waiting for just the right moment, near the election, to send us all your conservative message.

Judge's action not very funny

TO THE EDITOR:
My letter is in response to an article in the Wednesday, Oct. 26, Granite City Journal where Judge J. Lawrence Keshner was quoted saying, "It never hurts to have a sense of humor" after he let a man (Gregory Lucas) off after violating his probation.

Apparently, Lucas handed Judge Keshner a "Get Out of Jail Free" card from a Monopoly game, and the judge thought it was quite humorous. Granted, a sense of humor is nice, even necessary in most of today's life; however, it's not very funny that a man who was originally convicted of a felony for aggravated assault, more specifically, beating a woman with a belt, is basically "home free," to use the words of his attorney, Thomas Hildebrand.

Let's summarize this: A man beats a woman with a belt.

The man is convicted after confessing to the crime.

The man is sentenced to zero time in prison, zero time in rehabilitation, but to two years of probation.

The man violates probation within the first month; and the man is finally sentenced to serve time (two years) in prison but never goes to prison because he was released on a "90-day trial period."

Actually, this situation can be even more succinctly summarized: A man beats a woman with a belt, a fairly degrading form of abuse, and he gets off because he was released on a "90-day trial period."

Actually, this situation can be even more succinctly summarized: A man beats a woman with a belt, a fairly degrading form of abuse, and he gets off

because he was released on a "90-day trial period."

He might have been president

When I had breakfast with U.S. Sen. Paul Simon and his wife, Jeanne, in 1990, I assured them of my belief that he was a sure winner that year.

He later gained re-election by about a million votes, so it was not difficult for me to have made such a prediction.

It turns out that 1990 was Paul's last run for public office. He announced in mid-November that he will retire from the Senate in January 1997.

Madison County residents recall such dates as 1947, when Paul became editor and publisher of the Troy Tribune newspaper, and 1964, when he campaigned door-to-door here and was elected as a state representative.

After 14 years in the Illinois House and Senate, Paul was elected lieutenant governor of Illinois in 1968, but was upset in the 1972 primary when he ran for governor. He then served in Congress from 1974-84 before advancing to the U.S. Senate.

Noted for his honesty, his bow tie, his clear thinking and writing, his deep voice and his fondness for Pepsi, Paul left me with six indelible recollections.

1. In his early 20s, he would sometimes attend Sunday night young-adult gatherings at St. Louis' Second Presbyterian Church, where I later was married.

Bill Winter

2. While serving as a state legislator, he earned national attention by writing in Harper's magazine of the General Assembly's many corrupt practices at that time.

3. He was always willing to attend local civic meetings and, on one occasion, visited my home afterward for a small bipartisan reception.

4. After his election loss in 1972, Mr. and Mrs. Simon hosted me, Lois and a Carbondale newspaper couple for dinner at the Simon home. There, we tried to assess what had gone wrong in the primary. (It was not much consolation, but Dan Walker turned out to be one of the worst governors ever.)

5. When I attended one of his many senatorial "town hall" meetings, this one at Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville, Paul showed he had not lost his knack for remembering names and faces. As he stood at the auditorium door to welcome the people, he greeted nearly everyone by his or her first name. 6. Long before he decided to do so, I suggested in my column that he run for president. Later, a number of congressmen urged him to try for the White House, and he did campaign for the 1988 Democratic nomination, which instead went to Massachusetts Gov. Michael Dukakis.

After decisively winning the Illinois presidential primary, Paul said, "This was probably the most gratifying victory of all my years in public life because I have been judged by those who know me the best — my friends and constituents in Illinois."

"When voters know me, my leadership and my strong stands on critical issues facing America, I can win by substantial margins," he said.

"Although I was able to win Illinois without spending any money on media, we cannot expect to win without TV in states where voters don't know me as well. I'm convinced the vast majority of America's voters will respond when I talk about:

My hopes and dreams for a peaceful world, free from strife and the threat of destruction.

"My dream for a nation whose greatness is turned, not toward preparing for war, but toward a better life for all citizens."

"My dream of full employment and quality education for all, and full participation by all in our national prosperity."

"My dream of a nation whose public policies reflect the compassion of the people for the less fortunate, the most vulnerable among us."

"This nation needs an assault on our problems, not some management technique or tinkering at the edges of our problems."

"I want to deliver the White House back to all Americans. I want to return our nation to the path of caring, of dreaming, of hope, of greatness."

It was not to be, but it could have been.

Rep. Richard Gephardt of St. Louis virtually lived in Iowa for a year before edging Paul in the first 1988 primary. Paul's second-place finish was interpreted as a major setback and it hampered his effort to keep his campaign afloat financially.

If nominated, Paul undoubtedly would have outperformed Dukakis' lackluster campaign.

Would Paul have won the presidency if nominated? It's hard to say, but I think he would have done better in the Oval Office than many of those who occupied it during the past two centuries.

"home free". Now, I don't have any idea who that woman is, but I hope that whoever she and her family are, that they have a sense of humor, too.

Guess the weight — A "Guess the Weight of the Giant Pumpkins" contest was held at Prather School during October. Preschool through third grade students had to guess the weight of their pumpkin in pounds and ounces and fourth through sixth grade students had to guess in kilograms and grams.

Party! — The Granite City Park District hosted a Halloween Party for children at the Brown Recreational Center on Oct. 28. Immunization advantage Flu shots urged for all senior citizens

Thousands of serious illnesses, hospitalizations and deaths can be prevented if older Americans receive flu shots before the onset of winter.

But a recent study by the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services found that only about one-third of seniors enrolled in the Medicare program used their Medicare benefits to pay for the flu shots. Health and Human Services Secretary Donna Shalala has announced the start of a major public information campaign to encourage everybody age 65 and older to get a flu shot.

This large campaign is a combined effort among HHS agencies including the Health Care Financing Administration, the Public Health Services and the Administration on Aging as well as more than 60 consumer and provider organizations serving Medicare beneficiaries, including the American Lung Association and the American Association of Retired Persons. "Severe illness is especially tragic when it could have been prevented by immunization,"

Secretary Shalala said.

The HHS study found that only about 35 percent of all Medicare beneficiaries took advantage of the program's payment for flu shots during the 1993 flu season. The rate for minority group seniors was even lower — about 17 percent.

Secretary Shalala vowed that "1994 will be different. Our goal is to reach every older American with information on the Medicare flu immunization benefit, with special emphasis on hard-to-reach populations." HHS is making a concerted effort to spread the word about flu shots in areas with high concentrations of minority populations.

The flu shots are given at no cost to Medicare beneficiaries who receive them from "participating physicians" — doctors who agree to accept the Medicare amount as payment in full. The usual Medicare deductible and co-payment requirements do not apply to the flu shot. Beneficiaries must be enrolled in Part B (medical insurance) of the Medicare program in order to be eligible for the flu shot.

"Older Americans concerned about out-of-pocket expenses should be able to find providers who will administer flu shots at no cost to beneficiaries," said Bruce Vladeck, administrator of the federal Health Care Financing Administration.

Medicare beneficiaries can get a list of participating physicians by contacting the Medicare carrier for their state.

The shot is also available at hospitals, skilled nursing facilities, home health agencies and public health clinics. During the 1989-90 influenza season, a HCFA study estimated that more than 250,000 hospitalizations were related to the flu in the Medicare population age 65 and over.

During the 1990-91 influenza season, the number of hospitalizations in this group exceeded 180,000. Pneumonia and influenza were the sixth leading cause of death in the United States in 1991, and most of the deaths were among the elderly.

Plan to reduce Ameritech rates

Rates for customers of Ameritech will drop by $98 million a year, or 4.7 percent, instead of automatically increasing every year as the company had proposed under a new rate plan approved by state regulators in October.

The Citizens Utility Board estimates that residential customers will receive about 48 percent of the total rate cut, or about $45 million.

Those savings will come from eliminating the 73-cent touch-tone charge on most phone bills and from a 10 percent reduction in the price of calls made beyond about eight miles of a customer's home.

In addition to the rate cut, which was ordered in response to a complaint filed by CUB, charges for basic residential service will be capped for five years.

The rate plan, adopted by the Illinois Commerce Commission, enacts a wholesale restructuring of how local phone rates are set for Ameritech's 5 million customers across Illinois.

Under the plan, the phone company will no longer have any limits on its profits and phone rates will no longer be based on the cost of providing service. Instead, rates will be pegged to an inflation-based formula that will allow the company to change rates without prior approval by the ICC.

Under traditional regulation, rates are based on the company's costs and the rates can be reduced if profits rise to an unreasonably high level.

"This rate reduction is good news for customers, especially when you consider that the phone company was asking for automatic rate increases," CUB Executive Director Martin Cohen said.

During hearings on the Ameritech case, CUB presented evidence to the ICC showing that the phone company owed customers at least a $200 million rate reduction.

Ameritech has asked the ICC to reconsider the rate reduction. CUB will be asking the ICC to increase the cut.

THE LAW AND YOU

By RICK REED
Attorney At Law

The Illinois Vehicle Code provides that no driver or passenger may possess alcoholic liquor in the passenger area of a car except in the original container with the seal unbroken. If the police find an open container of alcoholic beverage, either a driver or a passenger can be charged with illegal transportation of liquor. Recently two different appellate courts have addressed the question of whether the State must prove that the driver or passenger had knowledge of alcohol in the vehicle in order to be convicted of illegal transportation.

Why is the question of knowledge of the presence of alcohol important? One can certainly envision a situation where a driver or passenger did not know an open container of liquor was in the car. For instance, one Court pointed out that an elderly gentleman may drive home from church with a little old lady who has an open flask of communion wine in her purse. Should he be charged with illegal transportation of liquor if he is unaware of the presence of the alcoholic beverage?

The Fourth District of the Appellate Court recently decided that knowledge of the existence of an open container of liquor was not necessary for a driver or passenger to be charged with illegal transportation of alcohol. The Court concluded that because of the importance of this issue to public safety, the offense of illegal transportation created absolute liability and that the State would not have to prove "knowledge" as a necessary element of the offense. The Court concluded that the gentleman who gave the lady a ride home from church would need to be more careful in selecting his passengers "in order to avoid being punished for their sins."

The Third District of the Appellate Court recently reached an opposite conclusion. In this case, the defendant was a front-seat passenger when the car was stopped with a seal-broken bottle of vodka in the back seat. The defendant argued that he had no knowledge of the liquor in the car, and the State maintained that proof of knowledge was not necessary. The Appellate Court for the Third District ruled that the State's Attorney would have to demonstrate that the passenger had knowledge of the existence of open alcohol in the vehicle. Hopefully, the Illinois Supreme Court will ultimately decide this question in order to resolve the conflict between the two Appellate Courts of this state.

Pickin' time...

It's time to be choosy. The boys high school basketball season tipped off Tuesday. Let's check in with the annual selections for the Southwestern and Mississippi Valley conferences, plus a quick glance at the independents.

Remember, these picks are for amusement only. Save your money for a rainy day.

- Southwestern
1. Collinsville
2. East St. Louis
3. Alton
4. Belleville West
5. Belleville East
6. Granite City

The Kahoks have won or shared the conference championship eight of the past nine years, so I'm not telling you anything earthshaking.

Collinsville has size and experience in 6-foot-8, 310-pound (gulp!) Cory Garcia, 6-3 Doug Davinroy and 5-10 Brandon Stultz, all seniors and all starters last year when the Kahoks went 23-7.

Mix in 4-4 senior Gary Wrigley and 6-3 junior Melvin Cochran, and the Kahoks could have the makings of a powered house, primed for another state run.

EAST ST. LOUIS, which is playing this week in the Galesburg Tournament, brings back four starters, most notably 6-9 senior DeMarcus Chapman and 6-0 senior Gilbert Manning.

It'll be interesting to see how the Flyers fare under new head coach Dwight Howard, an Alton resident. He replaces the late Ron Woods, who perished in June in an automobile accident. Alton is the mystery team under first-year coach Ron Smith. The Redbirds will count on 6-3 senior Jamie Lumpkins and a good group of underclassmen to forge a new era. Look for the Birds to get stronger the second half of the season. Alton's freshman team was 20-0 a year ago, so it's obvious the Birds will feature a youth movement.

- Mississippi Valley
1. Triad
2. Jerseyville
3. Roxana
4. Mascoutah
5. Civic Memorial
6. Highland
7. Wood River

Frankly, folks, I don't know how to pick this one. The MVC race could be one of the most competitive chases in the conference's history. For sure, there's no dominant team like CMV was last season.

Triad boasts Chris McMillin, Josh Cigliana and Nathan Taylor, an experienced trio for longtime coach Rich Mason, who retired as principal last year. But Mason has remained as head coach, no doubt, because the Knights are striving for their first MVC title since 1973.

JERSEYVILLE has size and enough experience. Rob Schroeder (6-5), Jason Brunaugh (6-3) and Josh Langellier (5-10) are the returning players. Jerrod Bridgewater (6-5), Kyle von Almen (6-4) and Dustin Henschel (6-3) boost the Panthers on the boards.

Roxana's 6-7, 210-pound Greg McDaniel, 6-6 Bob Morill and 6-6 Mark Bensley, among others, will provide the Shells with plenty of bulk.

Independents
It looks like an unusually strong season with Edwardsville, East St. Louis Lincoln and Cahokia leading the pack in Class AA. Mater Dei and Bunker Hill expect to be two of the better Class A clubs.

Edwardsville has as much depth as any team in southwestern Illinois. The Tigers can showcase 6-8 Chico Brown, 6-6 Chris Wright and an array of talented guards led by senior Dwight Woods.

Warriors unload on Hazelwood West, 10-0

By Rob Raphael
Staff writer

Don't roll out the Tier II championship trophy just yet, but after three games the Warrior hockey team is proving it's for real.

Granted, Monday's opponent — Hazelwood West — may not be the best team in the Mid-States Club Hockey Association, but that takes nothing away from a solid Warriors performance in a 10-0 romp at the Wilson Park Rink.

GRANITE CITY (2-0-1) got great efforts from nearly everyone, including goalie John Nappier, who celebrated Senior Night at the rink by posting his first shutout of the season.

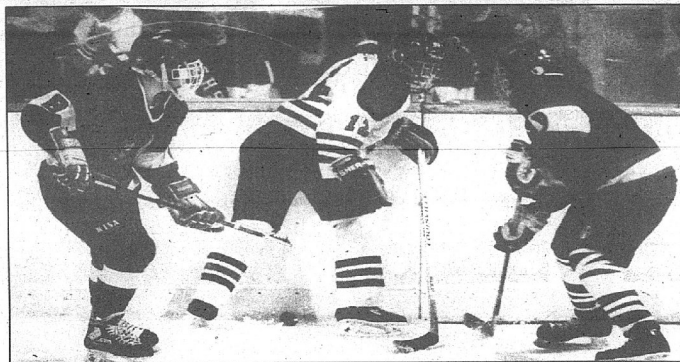

Jason Crites, Ryan Penrod, Chris Valencia, Steve Sinde and Matt Wilson were also honored during pre-game festivities.

But the celebrating didn't end with the seniors. The freshman line of Bob Pritchard, Bobby Harris and Brian Loftus also had some fun. Pritchard scored the team's first hat trick of the season.

Warrior coach Dave Yurkovich was not at all ashamed of the final score.

"We got beat by nine or 10 goals too often last year, so it was nice to return the favor and do it to somebody else," he said. "We really played well as a whole. Our passing looked very good, and so did our penalty killing."

AFTER BEING burned by power-play goals on Sunday against Eureka, the Warriors once again took a lot of penalties (nine), but killed each one off. "We're trying to establish Brian Johnson and Chris Angle of the Warriors battle for the puck along the boards.

(Clint) Phelps and Loftus as our main penalty killers," Yurkovich said.

"It's nice to be able to keep your first and second lines off the ice in those situations, and they did a really nice job. You have to be disciplined to kill penalties, and know when to chase the puck and when not to."

Besides the good defensive effort, the Warriors offense was on target as well. Matt Wilson scored a pair of goals, his fourth and fifth of the young season.

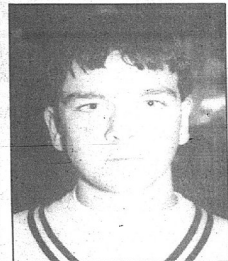

Mikal Guffey, Aaron Reeves, Sinde, Crites and Chris Hatfield also tallied for Granite City. Loftus added a pair of assists, as did defenseman Chris Angle. The Warriors outshot the Spartans 39-10.

THE WARRIORS LED 4-0 after the first period. Guffey got things started with his second goal of the season with 13:22 left in the first, and Reeves scored 2½ minutes later. Pritchard got his first of the night with 7:20 left, and Sinde finished the period with his second of the season at the 5:02 mark.

In a span of five minutes in the second period, Pritchard, Wilson and Pritchard again scored, turning the game into a rout.

Wilson netted his fifth in the third period, and Crites added his fourth goal (while the Warriors were two men short) before Hatfield scored on a deflection with under five minutes to play. Yurkovich agreed the Warriors were clicking on all cylinders. "We were pleased with the way we passed the puck around trying to get everyone involved," he said. "Our defense stood up well at the blue line. And although we committed too many penalties, our physical play gave us a big advantage."

YURKOVICH ADDED the change in player attitude from a year ago is obvious at all times. "The kids are happy and excited," he said. "Even in practice, they all show up every day and they're ready to go."

"We're off to a good start, but we aren't going to take anyone lightly. We want the kids to keep their intensity, and their flow on the ice going."

The Warriors are scheduled to play at the North County Rink on Saturday against McCluer. Game time is 9:30 p.m.

Lady Bills counting a lot on Cavaness

By Tony Panozzo
Staff writer

As a freshman with the St. Louis University women's basketball team, Jamie Cavaness is just getting started on the Division I level. But the former Granite City High School star has already stood out noticeably for the Lady Billikens.

At 6-2, Cavaness is SLU's tallest player, and her potential for success appears to be growing with each practice. Cavaness got off to a slow start because of a lower back injury, but she has impressed SLU coach Sharon Allen thus far.

"JAMIE'S GOING TO help us if she continues to get stronger," Allen said. "She has a lot of natural talent for her size. She has all the tools, and she's getting everything together."

"Right now, she's going through the turmoil of being a freshman. Jamie had a tough preseason because she was injured."

Cavaness missed about a month of conditioning work because she was suffering from a lower back sprain brought on by bursts in her hip. She joined the team in late October.

"I have a long way to go because I missed so much," Cavaness said. "I need to build up and get stronger right now."

In SLU's first game, an exhibition contest Nov. 11 against the St. Louis Lady Hawks, Cavaness played 16 minutes and scored four points. She fouled out of the game, but managed to get her feet wet. The Lady Bills lost 67-62.

"SHE ONLY PRACTICED about two weeks prior to the game," Allen said. "It was a game we played to get the girls on the floor. It went real well."

SLU will open the regular season Tuesday at home against Tennessee-Martin. The Lady Billikens, in their fourth year under Allen, are coming off a 6-21 season.

The team returns three starters and will be looking for some improved play under the basket after struggling against taller, more physical teams last season — an area Allen said Cavaness could bolster.

The Lady Bills, a member of the Great Midwest Conference, went 0-12 in league play last season.

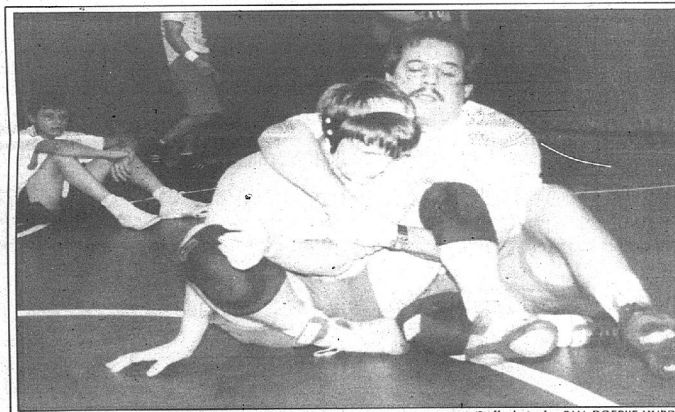

"She definitely can play in this league and at this level," Allen said. "Having Jamie gives us a boost. We're just trying to get her into a groove."

ALLEN SAID SHE and the Lady Bills were impressed with Cavaness' finesse style and ability to run the court despite her size. While Cavaness is known as a major contributor under the net on the offensive end, she can also help lead a team's fast break.

"The first day of practice, she surprised a lot of the girls," Allen said. "Jamie passes the ball very well for her size. She can zip the ball in the open court."

"She will get the job done offensively just by being around the basket. She has a real knack around the basket and she likes

Lincoln Athletic Club donates to Hall of Fame

The Granite City Sports Hall of Fame recently received a $5,000 gift from the Lincoln Athletic Club, an organization filled with tradition that will be recognized with a room at the Hall of Fame museum next to Granite City High School.

Hall of Fame chairman Les Thompson said the gift would be used to retire the debt on the Hall's building on Fehling Road next to Memorial Stadium.

THE BUILDING NOT only houses Hall of Fame memorabilia, but also provides restrooms, ticket booths and a concession stand for events held at GCHS.

"The Lincoln Athletic Club has provided the community with five decades of unselfish contributions which enhanced the lives of people young and old alike," Thompson said. "A suitable room will be named in the club's honor and will house some of its memorabilia. It's another attempt at preserving the rich heritage of Granite City's sports history."

contact. She needs to work on her defensive game, but that will come with time.

The Lady Bills have a number of returning guards, but they do not have much experience on their front line. SLU returns its top scorer, shooting guard Lynette Pestel, who ranked fifth in the GMC last year with 17.8 points per game.

THE OTHER RETURNING starters are sophomore point guard Tonika Sanders, who averaged 13.3 points last year; and senior forward Niki Mathews. The 5-7 Mathews is the only returning starter from a frontcourt that lost Karen Burdge, Donna Luechtel and Roxanne Klein.

"Niki has to play big for us this year," Allen said. "I know she will be a leader."

Cavaness hopes to eventually develop into a leader for the Lady Bills, but she remains patient for now and is concentrating on adjusting to the college level.

"It's going pretty good," Cavaness said. "I'm getting used to everything. It's going to be a lot different and a big challenge. I just have to get used to it and get stronger."

Cavaness was one of the most highly recruited players in the St. Louis area last year after finishing up a sensational four-year career at GCHS. Cavaness averaged 22 points and 10 rebounds as a senior and was named to the Illinois Basketball Coaches Association Class-AA All-State team.

Cavaness also set a school record with 322 points as a senior and left GCHS as the school's all-time scoring leader with 1,796 points. The old record had been held by her sister, Jennifer.

•Lincoln

The Lincoln Athletic Club, formed shortly after World War II, became a center of sports activity open to members of the community.

"When the boys came home, they wanted to do something for the community," a club spokesman said. "We had 85 to 90 members, and we sponsored basketball, baseball, softball and soccer teams. We also sponsored scout troops and sent them to national jamborees."

THE LINCOLN Athletic Club contributed to the Granite City Park District's Community Club maintenance program. Among the first projects were constructing a wading pool and purchasing mats and equipment for exercise classes. The club's most recent project was acquiring funds for a set of outdoor basketball courts at the center through the park district.

The community center was erected in the early 1920s. Commonwealth Steel provided funding and materials, and residents supplied the necessary labor. Area oldtimers believe that the building helped galvanize the community and became a focal point for many activities.

They also laud the efforts of Sophia Prather, a retired teacher who "ran the place" for many years. The school in West Granite is named in her honor.

Club spokesmen remember when Reuben Mendoza played on their soccer team. Mendoza, sometimes called the "Father of Granite City soccer," achieved international recognition for his skills.

THEY FONDLY TALK about the 1990 state championship basketball team at GCHS. Seven of the 10 team members and all five starters came from Lincoln Place and honed their skills at an early age at the community center.

The starters were Andy Philip, the University of Illinois NCAA champion "Whiz Kid" and 15-year member of the Boston Celtics; Andy Hagopian; George Gages; Dan Eftimoff; and Evon Parsagian. Reserves John Markarian and Sam Mouradian were joined by Ed Huff, Eddie Mueller and Everett Daniels, Gages, Hagopian and Markarian still reside in Granite City.

In its march to the state championship, Granite City defeated Streator 45-31, Dundee 35-30, Moline 41-38 and Herrin 24-22.

The Herrin-Granite City title game was a surprise. No team from southern Illinois had ever advanced to the finals. Hagopian, who had paced the Warriors with 10 points against Dundee, suffered a dislocated shoulder in the semifinal matchup. Many at the tournament wrote off the Warriors, but a brilliant performance in the final game by Philip ensured the victory.

THE TEAM was coached by Byron Rozarth and assistant Leonard Davis, who would later become the mayor of Granite City. Harold Brown, the longtime parks director, was the team manager.

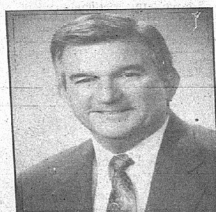

The championship was a significant political event as well, as noted by members of the team, because it forged a strong bond between West Granite, Lincoln Place and the city as a whole.

Today, only 10 members remain active in the Lincoln Athletic Club.

"And we're getting old," the club spokesman said. "That's why we're dispersing our funds."

"We've kept something in the kitty for the next generation of young volunteers. There's a lot of help needed to work with and there's a lot of satisfaction, too. What we have left will give them a good start. First, we've got to find them."

University of Evansville
Angela Fowler of Granite City entered the University of Evansville this fall as a freshman. She is the daughter of Charles and Marian Fowler of Granite City.

University of Evansville is an independent, United Methodist Church-affiliated institution located in southwestern Indiana. It has five colleges and schools, including a campus at Earlham College in England.

Western Illinois U
Robert Proffitt of Granite City, a sophomore political science major at Western Illinois University, was named a Harold F. Schory Scholar for Debate and a Wayne N. Thompson Scholar for Forensics.

The Schory award is given in honor of the late speech faculty member. Schory retired in 1960 after 34 years at Western Illinois University. The Schory Memorial Fund provides scholarships to outstanding students in theatre and outstanding members of the debate team.

The Thompson award, established in 1980, is given in honor of the 1936 graduate, a distinguished speech communication professor and debate coach.

Beth Noe of Granite City, a freshman biological sciences major at Western Illinois University, received the university women's scholarship, which is awarded to outstanding incoming freshmen with an ACT score of 25 or above and a competitive grade point average.

Union University
Randall Scott of Granite City was recently inducted into Union University's Students in Free Enterprise chapter. The university is located in Jackson, Tenn.

Scott was recommended by Union faculty and selected by returning SIFE members to participate in the 26-member team, an elite organization which strives to promote a better understanding and greater appreciation of the free enterprise system.

Through numerous projects, the SIFE team educates the community of each American's right to pursue his or her chosen legal business venture without government interference.

Scott, a junior accounting major, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Scott of Granite City.

Culver-Stockton
Amy L. Chout of Granite City has been named to Culver-Stockton College's Symphonic Band for the 1994-95 school year.

Membership in the band is open to all students who are interested in instrumental music and proficient in ability. The band's repertoire includes music from the classical era to 20th century modern. The Symphonic Band, directed by Dr. R. Joseph Diaker, associate professor of music, performs at concerts throughout the school year.

Choat, a junior elementary education major, is the daughter of Carroll and Nancy Choat of Granite City.

CWU buys food for pantry

The monthly Church Women United meeting was held on Nov. 10 at the Central Christian Church with Helen Stumpe presiding. Muriel Kratz gave the devotion. Up-to-date reports on the many on-going projects were given as well as those on past celebrations.

CWU purchased $200 worth of items for the Head Start Pantry project — articles that cannot be purchased with food stamps. Four hundred-eleven dollars that was collected from the churches and dedicated at World Community Day on Nov. 10 was sent to Church World Service for the purchase of blankets. The Third Baptist Church has offered its facilities for World Community Day in 1995.

The "Music, Music!" program will be held at St. Elizabeth Church in April 1995. A retreat will be held at the King's House and Renewal Center in Belleville on Sept. 8 and 9. This retreat is offered especially to young women of the community.

The annual Christmas party of CWU will be held at 11 a.m. Dec. 2 at the Central Christian Church. Those attending are asked to bring a craft item to be sold, a white elephant to be auctioned, gifts for the Head Start Pantry and a covered dish for lunch.

Those present at the meeting were Eva Clemens, Helen Todroff, Helen Stumpe, Millie Clement, Burdine Holtzsch, Dorothy Rivenburgh, Dorothy Kinney, Jean Hillman, Muriel Kratz, Doris Volav, Ruth Leik, Nona Corzelli, Joyce Toussaint, Louise Anderson, Mildred Jungels, Annabelle Patton, Lucille Caban, Elizabeth Briggs, Dolores Moseley, Lorna Henson and Margaret Kwiatkowski.

The Task Force will have a Christmas Party in December for 25 to 30 children of Pontoon Beach. If anyone is aware of a family that will have a hard Christmas this year, please contact Cindy at 451-7050 or Linda at 931-1607 as soon as possible.

The Task Force meets every third Thursday of the month in the basement of the Village Hall. Everyone is welcome.

Brian Patton
Navy Petty Officer First Class Brian K. Patton, son of James G. Patton and Sandra Archibald of Granite City, recently returned to the Persian Gulf aboard the aircraft carrier USS George Washington in response to yet another crisis in Iraq.

Patton is one of more than 5,000 sailors and Marines assigned to the carrier and its air wing. He recently traveled from the Mediterranean Sea, through the Suez Canal and Red Sea to the Persian Gulf.

Demonstrating the flexibility and mobility of forward-deployed naval forces, the 1,092-foot-long USS George Washington deployed in May from Norfolk, Va., to the Adriatic Sea off the coast of Bosnia-Herzegovina. In September, Patton returned to the Adriatic to support NATO operations when the most recent Iraqi contingency caused President Clinton to order the ship to return immediately to the Middle East.

With 80 tactical aircraft aboard, USS George Washington presents an extremely mobile and formidable presence, capable of moving more than 700 miles a day. Patton and fellow crew members join other deployed naval forces that have been in the Gulf supporting the "no-fly zone" over southern Iraq since the end of the Persian Gulf War. While deployed, Patton has visited England, France, Greece, Turkey, Israel and the United Arab Emirates.

Today, U.S. aircraft carriers and other ships are on station around the world from the Persian Gulf and Western Pacific Ocean. These forces can dominate coastal and ocean areas while projecting sustained power and presence wherever U.S. interests are involved, operating forward, from the sea.

'Square' group spawns original metal monster

By Mike Tucker
Staff Writer

It's a Saturday night in November at Club 367 in north St. Louis, and two guys are playing the back door.

"Who's playing tonight?"
"I dunno, Testament, and I don't know the other bands. Red Black something."

"Red Square Black?"

"Yeah, I knew it had two colors."

The previous scenario is one that is likely to change if Red Square Black's debut ep, Square, is any indication.

If you have not heard of them yet, don't feel bad, guitarist John Lowery says.

"We haven't been together that long," Lowery said. "Only since Dec. 11 of last year. I met" former Ozzy Osbourne drummer Randy Castillo "through Ozzy's guitarist Zakk Wilde. Me and Randy hit it off and said 'let's start something.'"

Though "highly motivated," as Lowery described them, they ran into a serious roadblock.

"We couldn't find a bass player or a singer to save our lives," he said.

Enter producer Bob Marlette, who introduced singer Mark Binder and bassist Angelo Barbera to the mix.

"We just started this" with a "let's see what happens" approach, Binder said. "We took the tape to record labels. It took off" from there.

"Definitely, Cinderella," Barbera said. "We were all trying to get that elusive record deal" and now "it all happened."

The result is a five-song ep entitled Square. The title, like the band's name, is derived from the Supremist painting "Red Square Black Square."

"The philosophy of the Supremists is to replicate, or imitate," Lowery said. "We wanted to create a band with a wide open sound. We try not to be dependent" on the technology which comprises a sizeable portion of the Red Square Black sound.

"We write the song first," Lowery said. "Then we say, 'what can we add to this?'" It's "the icing on the cake" — whatever it takes, samples, acoustics.

"Whatever it takes" seems to be an apt description of the disc. Opening with "Violent Pause," Lowery uses drills and brushes to punish his guitar into screeching submission, before the band engages in full-scale riff-clare. Castillo synchronizes seamlessly with the drum machines and sequencers as Barbera's bone crunching bass lays the foundation. "I Lost My" serves as a showcase for

Binder's overdriven compression-laden vocals, recalling early Jane's Addiction-era Perry Farrell. "Man in the Hammock" tastefully weaves sound-bites and samples in and out of digital cacophony, and "Just Another Day" closes out the five-song combination with a knock-out punch.

The ep's subject matter has received some notoriety as well: In "Religious Sin," a victim of sexual assault takes revenge on his assaultant — a minister. "Violent Pause" is pure revenge fantasy as vigilante declares war on bigotry.

The group seemed relatively unaffected.

"We have a lot of things up our sleeve," Lowery said.

"There are many sides to" this band, Binder agreed. "We're in this for the long-term."

Red Square Black's debut, Square, is available on Zoo Entertainment-BMG compact discs.

Open auditions scheduled

Two sets of open auditions, one for a Gilbert and Sullivan operetta and the other for a Tennessee Williams classic, are scheduled in late November and early December on the campus of Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville.

Audition appointments may be made by calling the SIUE department of theater and dance, 692-2773.

Open auditions for a production of "The Pirates of Penzance" by Gilbert and Sullivan begin at 6:30 p.m.

Tuesday, Nov. 29, in Room 2015 (the large dance studio) of the Communications Building theater. Those auditioning should wear dance clothes, such as tights or sweatpants, and jazz shoes or slick-soled sneakers.

Dance auditions for everyone begin at 6:30; individual, five-minute auditions begin at 7:30.

Those auditioning should prepare a one-minute comic monologue that displays physical animation and 16 measures of a song from a Broadway musical or a Gilbert and Sullivan operetta.

According to director J. Calvin Jarrell, professor of theater and dance and director of the dance program at SIUE, those auditioning need not be theater majors or minors. Special audition arrangements may be made, on a case by case basis only, by calling Jarrell at Ext. 2773.

Open auditions for a production of "The Glass Menagerie" by Tennessee Williams will be conducted by appointment from 6:30 to 9:30 p.m. Tuesday and Wednesday,

Dec. 6-7, in Room 2039 of the Communications Building. Call backers are scheduled at the same time and place the next day, Dec. 8.

Those auditioning should prepare a one-and-one-half to two-minute serious monologue taken from a modern theater work, said director Lynn F. Kluth, professor of theater and dance and chair of that department. "Ideally, the monologue should have a reflective reminiscence quality," Kluth said. "In other words, it should depict something remembered with mixed feelings."

More information about the auditions may be obtained by calling Ext. 2773.
